SECTION 51 MANUAL FOR ARGILITY PROPRIETARY LIMITED AND ITS SUBSIDIARIES

GROUP OF COMPANIES

Argility Proprietary Limited, registration number 2007/010401/07 is a private body as defined in the Promotion of Access to Information Act 2 of 2000 (“Act”).

This manual has been compiled in relation to Argility Proprietary Limited and its subsidiaries, as follows –

- Cquential Solutions Proprietary Limited
- Fleet Domain Online Systems Proprietary Limited
- Skydata Communications Proprietary Limited
- Indaba Mobile Phone Systems (RF) Proprietary Limited

The motivation for the Act is to be found in the Constitution of South Africa. The Constitution provides that everyone has a right of access to information held –

- by the state, where no reason for access to the information needs to be established (section 32(1)(a) of the Constitution) or,
- by a private body, if the requestor requires a record for the exercise or protection of any right (section 32(1)(b) of the Constitution).

The Constitution further requires that legislation be enacted to give effect to the provision of section 32. The Act has been enacted to meet this requirement.

In terms of the Act any person has a right of access to a record held by or under the control of a private body if the record –

- is required for the exercise or protection of any right;
- the requestor has complied with all the procedural requirements of the Act; and
- the private body is not entitled to refuse access to the record requested in terms of the grounds of refusal established in the Act.

The grounds for refusal are –

- mandatory protection of the privacy of a third party who is a natural person (human being);
- mandatory protection of commercial information of a third party;
- mandatory protection of certain confidential information of a third party;
- mandatory protection of the safety of individuals, and the protection of property;
- mandatory protection of records privileged from production in legal proceedings;
- commercial information of a private body;
- mandatory protection of research information of a third party and of a private body.

The first issue to confirm is whether the request is procedurally correct. This will be facilitated by properly and fully completing the information required in the “Request for Access to a Record”. If assistance is required, the information officer will render all reasonable assistance to a requester in complying with the procedures set out in the Act. He/she will also require that the requester is properly identified and that the applicable fee and, if applicable a deposit, has been paid. Only after these requirements have been satisfied will the thirty day period, within which the information officer is obliged to give the requester notice of his/her decision, begin to run.

The second issue to confirm is whether the requester has evidenced, in the request, that he/she requires the record to exercise or protect a right. If the information officer is satisfied that the information provided by the requester supports this requirement the third enquiry will be conducted.

The third issue to confirm is whether the information officer must or may refuse the request on the basis of a “Ground for Refusal” set out in the Act. In certain instances this decision is mandatory and in others it is discretionary.

Once the information officer has made his/her decision he/she must inform the requester of the decision and, if the request is refused, provide reasons for the refusal.

If the requester is aggrieved by either the fees charged for access to a record, the form in which access is provided to a record, or by a refusal to grant access to a record, the requester is entitled to apply to court for appropriate relief, within thirty days of receiving notice of the decision.

Argility Proprietary Limited endorses the object of the Act, which is to give effect to the constitutional right of access to information, subject to justifiable limitations. The manual is intended to assist requesters in exercising this right.
